ONE IS KILLED IN WRECK AT PARNELL

ANOTHER MAY DIE FROM INJURIES RECEIVED.

THREE ARE INJURED

Chicago Great Western Passenger Train Splits and Five Coaches Pile Up in Ditch.

The following story of the Chicago Great Western wreck north of Parnell yesterday morning is taken from today's St. Joseph Gazette:

Killed.

Edward Hodgins, Kansas City, brakeman.

Injured.

Paul Vermillion, Kansas City, conductor, badly crushed, condition critical.

J. J. Eggleson, Des Moines, bridge worker, head cut, leg bruised.

George E. McIninch, St. Joseph, shoulder wrenched.

A brakeman was killed, the conductor probably fatally injured, and several passengers were cut and bruised when five coaches of Chicago & Great Western passenger train No. 1 were derailed and piled in a ditch just north of the station at Parnell, Mo., at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Running a little behind time at a mile-a-minute clip, the train suddenly split behind the baggage car, the day coach, pullman, and dining cars rolled over the east embankment, and the engine, tender and baggage car tore the track for three hundred yards before stopping. A defective rail is believed to have caused the wreck.

Passengers and trainmen said they thought it almost miraculous that there was not a long list of killed and injured.

Lyle Woodard, the engineer, was uninjured. He said he was getting a drink of water when the train split. One of his feet caught when he made for the throttle and the train tore up the track for about three hundred yards before he reached the reverse. Although the trucks were wrenched from the tender, it remained upright.

Physicians Hurry to Scene.

St. Joseph physicians and physicians from neighboring towns arrived on the scene soon after the wreck and gave first aid to the injured. A Burlington wrecker arrived at 2 o'clock with several physicians from St. Joseph and William Fleeman, who was called to superintend ambulance work, for the first reports to reach here were that a score or more were killed and as many injured.

Train No. 1 is scheduled to arrive in St. Joseph at 10:10 a. m. It is a fast train and makes but one stop between Des Moines and St. Joseph, and that to take water and loal. It was said to be fifteen minutes behind time when it left Des Moines Sunday morning.

Hodgins, the brakeman, was standing in the doorway of the day coach, according to spectators, and was hurled from the train when the car was derailed. Death resulted instantly.

Laid a Temporary Track.

A temporary track was laid around the wreck and train No. 9, due in here at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, arrived only a few minutes late. Vermillion, the conductor, who was badly crushed, was taken on the train to Kansas City.

Ambulances from Fleeman-McNeill's, H. O. Sidenfaden's and Stingley's undertaking rooms, met the train at the Third street station but there were no injured to be taken off here.

The wreckage was cleared at 10 o'clock last night and the line made clear. An investigation will be made today into the cause of the wreck, according to officials of the railroad.

McIninch's Experience.

Former Mayor McIninch was returning to St. Joseph from his summer home at Dorset, Minn., and was in the sleeper.

"I was talking with some acquaintances when we hit the switch a short distance before we reached Parnell, and suddenly the Pullman began rocking violently. Naturally, everybody grabbed for something to hold to, but few found anything. After being rolled around while traveling several hundred feet and praying that the rocking would cease, we all found ourselves piled here and there among the cushions, pillows and what not," Mr. McIninch said Sunday night.

"There were between twenty and twenty-five persons in the sleeper and no one was injured seriously. We were all mightly thankful for that. When we finally regained our senses after the car tipped over on its side, top down, we knocked out some of the windows on the lower side to free ourselves.

"Had not the engine and tender become free from the remainder of the train it is my opinion that many persons would have been killed. As it was, the rails were literally wrapped up and the ties lifted from their places for a considerable distance where the baggage car, smoker, chair car, sleeper, and diner plowed along," Mr. McIninch added.

PAVING WORK WILL BEGIN ABOUT AUG. 1

CONSTRUCTION OUTFIT IS NOW AT PRINCETON.

ABOUT 75 MEN IN CREW

M. N. Windle Says Work Progresses Nicely But Bad Weather Has Retarded It Considerably.

The paving work on the ten-mile road project south of Maryville will start about August 1, M. N. Windle of the Atkinson Paving Co., announced today.

The paving crew is now working at Princeton, Mo., having finished the work near Fairfax several days ago, Mr. Windle said. About seventy-five men are in the crew at the present time and more will probably be added when the work near Maryville starts. A number of local men will be employed on the paving work here, Mr. Windle said.

The paving company representative was well pleased with the progress of the work although he said that the bad weather had retarded it to a considerable extent. Enough of the grading and bridging however, will be completed by August 1 so that the paving work can start on the project by that time, Mr. Windle said.

A large quantity of cement has already been stored at Arkoe and more is arriving every few days. A big shed has been erected near the station for storing the shipments.

The permanent detour road has now been completed and marked, under the supervision of E. Warren Gotwals, project engineer. This road will be regularly maintained and inspected by the state highway officials. This road will be used until the ten-mile paving project is completed.

Burt W. Loomis is Surprised by Radio

The Democrat-Forum radio sprang a surprise this morning.

Burt W. Loomis was in front of the office when the first ballot was being taken. He heard the name of his aunt, Mrs. F. O. Andrews of Frederickstown, N. Y., called with the New York delegation.

"I didn't even know she was a delegate to the convention," Mr Loomis said this morning. "It sure was a big surprise to me."

Missouri in Discussion Over Unit Rule and Poll of Delegates Is Taken.

BULLETIN.

The Democratic convention voted at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon to adjourn until 8 o'clock tonight. Chairman Walsh announced to the delegates that the convention would start promptly this evening and balloting would start whether the delegates were in their seats or not. This is 6 o'clock Maryville time.

(By Radio)

Radio steps to the fore again. Madison Square Garden broadcasting.

Five minutes after time for the National Democratic Convention to reconvene this morning only about 150 of the 1100 delegates are present. Permanent Chairman Walsh is on the platform but the delegates are arriving slowly. Some 500 visitors are in the galleries.

The gavel sounds at 10:28 o'clock, two minutes less than an hour late. The delegates are practically all present and the galleries are all filled.

The invocation is offered by the Rev. Gustav Arnold Carstensen, Holy Rood church, Protestant Episcopal, of New York.

This prayer is closed with the recital of the Lord's prayer by the convention.

The roll call by states is next. The chair recognizes Mr. Quigley of Massachusetts who, speaking from his seat, cannot be heard.

A gentleman from New York calls for the regular roll call.

The chair announced that the chair will hereafter require that anyone desiring to challenge a report must do so at the time the report is given. However any delegate may arise at any time before the results and change his vote.

On the first ballot it was necessary to poll the vote of Missouri. On this poll George Robb Ellison of Maryville, one of the delegates from the fourth district, voted for McAdoo.

This was met with applause from the persons in front of the Democrat-Forum office.

After hearing the speeches of the Missouri delegation and polling each individual delegate, Chairman Walsh ruled that the vote be recorded as reported by the chairman. This was according to the unit rule. Consequently all of the Missouri thirty-six votes were cast for McAdoo. In the individual poll of the delegates eight of the Missouri men did not vote.

Now the balloting begins and the battle is on.

Ellison Says Some Sentiment for Davis

General Opinion Is That Neither McAdoo Nor Smith Can Be Nominated.

In a message to the Democrat-Forum, George Robb Ellison, a delegate from this district at the New York convention, says:

"Though a majority of our delegation is standing fast for McAdoo on the sixth ballot, the general opinion is that neither McAdoo nor Smith will be nominated. The Klan fight has been bitter and detrimental to party. Ralston is regarded as aligned with one side and Underwood with the other.

"There is a strong undercurrent of sentiment developing for John W. Davis as strongest candidate not involved in this controversy. Glass would be good but does not show strength."

Guests At Hanna Home.

Mrs. Henry Toel of St. Joseph and her guest, Miss V. M. Eichmiller of St. Paul, Minn., were week-end guests of Mrs. Toel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hanna. Miss Eichmiller is a former assistant instructor in the home economics department of the State Teachers College.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Basford are the parents of a son, born yesterday morning at St. Francis hospital, to whom they have given the name Paul, Jr. Mrs. Basford was formerly Miss Louvre Myers.

M'ADOO AND SMITH ARE HOLDING OWN; NO BIG BREAKS AS YET

KANSAS MAY SWING TO McADOO ON TENTH

FAVORITE SONS DROP

Sweet, Kendrick and Ferris Out of Running—Smith Gets Advantage In Distribution.

Madison Square Garden, June 30.—The Democratic convention recessed shortly before 5 o'clock this afternoon until 8 o'clock tonight after futilly trying to name a candidate for the presidency for nine successive ballots.

William G. McAdoo maintained a commanding lead over the field for the entire nine ballots but he did not come within a hundred votes of a majority much less the two-thirds required for nomination.

Governor Al Smith increased his strength steadily from 241 on the first ballot to 278 on the ninth and his managers claimed to be able to run him considerably above this any time they gave the word.

McAdoo's maximum strength was polled on the eighth and ninth ballots on both of which he had 444 6-10 as compared with a strength on the first ballot of 431.

Three favorite sons were out of the running during the nine ballots—the first, Governor W. E. Sweet of Colorado on the third ballot; Senator John B. Kendrick of Wyoming on the fifth, and Senator Woodbridge Ferris of Michigan on the eighth.

The votes of these states were split between Underwood, McAdoo, Smith and John W. Davis, with the New York governor faring better in the distribution than his rivals.

Still another favorite son was scheduled to drop when the adjournment until 8 o'clock tonight came—the Kansas delegation decided to go to McAdoo as had been generally expected.

Several efforts were made during the balloting to break the unit rule of the McAdoo delegation, principally in Missouri and the Panama Canal Zone, but each time Senator Thomas J. Walsh, the permanent chairman of the convention, upheld it.

New York, June 30.—After the first ballot was taken this morning, William J. Bryan was recognized to present a resolution.

"By the unanimous consent of the committee on resolutions," Bryan said, "I present a resolution separate from the platform."

He then proceeded to read a resolution expressing the regret of this Democratic convention at the death of the late President Harding.

The resolution was adopted unanimously by a rising vote.

New York, June 30.—The Democratic national convention completed its first ballot in record time.

The Missouri delegation, however delayed the action somewhat when Joseph Shannon, Kansas City, challenged the unit rule and demanded a new poll of the votes.

Chairman Walsh summoned Shannon to the platform and decided to allow him five minutes in which to debate his challenge of the unit rule. Shannon took the platform and said:

"We choose this method of protesting against the unit rule because it is not an expression of the people of Missouri."

Shannon explained that Reed had 400 votes in the state convention and McAdoo 90. A resolution, he said, had been introduced, endorsing McAdoo but was rejected and then a "trick resolution" was put over to prevent Reed's friends from voting for him.

Shannon explained that the reason he and his colleagues voted "present" instead of for a candidate was that under no circumstances would they vote for McAdoo and he thus chose not to be bound by the unit rule.

Shannon charged that money had been used in the Missouri delegation. This was greeted with hisses from that group.

Senator Farris of Missouri was then recognized to answer Shannon's argument. Farris said:

"We were all elected and the fact is well known to my colleague, if he would be fair, that every delegate elected was publicly known and publicly committed to McAdoo, long before the state convention."

He then read the resolution as passed by the state convention at Springfield, providing that a majority should be able to put into effect a unit rule.

Chairman Walsh then announced that while it was beyond the power of the chair to decide the question, he would order the entire vote of Missouri cast for McAdoo.

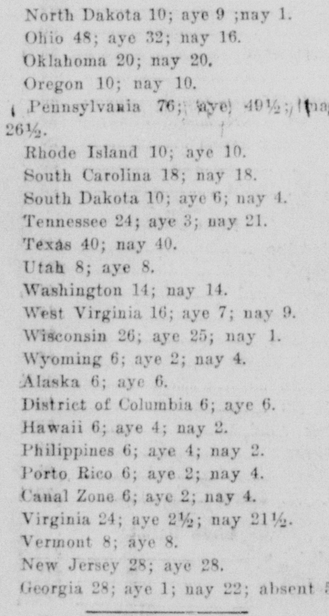
Illinois Candidate Keeps Cool.



NORMAN L. JONES.

Norman L. Jones, Democratic nominee for Governor of Illinois, managed to keep cool at the Democratic National Convention in New York City.

TOOK 57 BALLOTS 10 DAYS SESSION

DEMOCRATS HOLD RECORD FOR LONG CONVENTIONS.

WAS HELD IN 1860

Whig Parley In 1840 Lasted Four Days—1832 Is Beginning of Convention And Platform Era.

From the Boston Transcript.

We may reckon 1832 as the beginning of the political convention and platform era; the first national nominating convention being held and the first platform adopted in that year by the national Republican party, with Henry Clay as its candidate.

The Democrats also held their first national convention in 1832, and adopted, for the sake of assuring the nomination of Martin Van Buren for the vice-presidency, their famous two-thirds rule, which has ever since prevailed in their conventions, though several times attempts have been made to repeal it.

In the early conventions of both parties, down to the Civil War, each state sent as many delegates as it pleased, though the voting power of each was limited to the numbers of its representation in congress. The platform was sometimes adopted before and sometimes after the nominations were made.

First Long Convention.

The first convention that was considered long was that of the Whigs in 1840, which lasted four days, and nominated William Henry Harrison. Four years later the Democrats had a fight over the two-thirds rule, but readopted it, and on the ninth ballot stampeded the convention for Polk the first "dark horse" candidate. In 1848, the New York contest between the "Hunkers" and "Barnburners" protracted the Democratic convention to five days, though only four ballots were needed.

In 1852, the Democrats had four commanding candidates—Cass, Douglas, Buchanan, and Marcy. But they overwhelmingly reaffirmed the two-thirds rule, and in consequence none of these eminent men could win; but on its sixth day and forty-ninth ballot the convention was stampeded for a comparative nonentity, Franklin Pierce. That same year the triangular contest among Webster, Scott and Fillmore compelled the Whigs to cast fifty-three ballots before Scott secured a majority.

The record convention for length, thanks to Ben Butler's marplotry, was the Democratic of 1860, which met in Charleston for ten days and fifty-seven futile ballots, and then adjourned to reassemble in Baltimore for four days more. In that memorable year the Republicans met for only three days, and definitely rejected for all time a proposal for the two-thirds rule, nominating Lincoln on the third ballot. One ballot was enough for each of the conventions in 1864, but in 1868 the Democrats in New York cast twenty-two, in a long convention, before they nominated Seymour. The Republicans met for four days in 1876 and cast seven ballots, and, best of all, did away with the "unit rule."

A Seven Days' Session.

The Republican convention of 1880 is historic for the efforts of the "Stalwart 306" during six days and thirty-six ballots to renominate Grant for a third term. Again in 1888 they were in session seven days, though only eight ballots were cast.

The Democrats in that year made their nomination on the first ballot, as did both parties in 1892, and, with a single exception, in four succeeding conventions; the exception being that in 1896, the Democrats took five days and five ballots to nominate the "Boy Orator of the Platte" on the strength of his "crown of thorns and cross of gold" speech.

Long conventions marked 1912, when the Republicans were in session five days, though they cast only one ballot; and it took the Democrats nine days and forty-six ballots to nominate Woodrow Wilson.

Again in 1920 the Republicans were in session for four days and cast ten ballots, and the Democrats had a nine days' convention, and not until the forty-fourth ballot selected Cox from among ten candidates.

Democratic Presidential Possibilities

CHARLES W. BRYAN

Out in Nebraska they used to refer to Charles W. Bryan as "Brother Charley," but when he was elected Governor two years ago the political writers changed his title to "Mr. Bryan."

For twenty years it had been said that "Brother Charley" had lived in the shadow of his famous brother, William J. During a large part of that time he acted as William J.'s private secretary. Other times he was his brother's editor and publisher.

Politicaliy he had always followed the policies of his brother, and their friends said William J. had more confidence in his opinion on national policies than in that of the leaders with whom he came in contact.

Governor Bryan has the reputation of being able to talk long and entertainingly and can make a first-class speech; but he is not as great an orator as the author of the "Cross of Gold and Crown of Thorns" speech which electrified the National Democratic Convention that first nominated William Jennings Bryan in 1896 for the Presidency.

Was Born in Illinois.

Governor Bryan came to Nebraska thirty-three years ago from Salem, Ill., where he was born. He is fifty-seven years old and, before becoming private secretary to William J. was a traveling cigar salesman.

While "Brother Charley" was practically unknown to the people, Democratic leaders and delegates to the National Democratic Convention which nominated Woodrow Wilson in 1912 became suddenly aware of of his presence in Baltimore; and before his death, Champ Clark asserted it was solely on account of Charles W. Bryan's program he was beaten for the Presidential nomination.

Mr. Clark attributed his defeat to a resolution introduced by Brother William which hurled some verbal brickbats at certain men the then Secretary of State deemed to be political undesirables.

After Wilson's nomination it became known it was 'Brother Charley' who had advised the resolution and had practically prepared it.

Physically the Brothers Bryan do not resemble each other except in one respect—they are both bald. "Brother Charley" is a big, upstanding man and walks with a swinging step, head up and his shoulders thrown back.

He is a strong advocate of the eight-hour day for everybody but himself, and it is said of him that he is always ready to work forty-eight at a stretch when it is necessary.

Governor Bryan was a candidate for the nomination for Governor before the primary, but did not receive the nomination.

Started Public Coal Yards.

He was a member of the Lincoln City Council several times and served a term as Mayor.

In the Council he headed the Municipal Electric Light Plant, Coal Yard, Gas Plant, Ice Plant and Public Market, and when coal prices got high throughout Nebraska he extended his municipal coal yards idea until he was able to sell coal throughout the State several dollars a ton cheaper than any retailer. He forced the price down.

Like his distinguished brother, he is temperate in his habits, using neither tobacco, intoxicants nor profane language. But Commercial Club members declare he is one of the club's best "bottle pool" players.

Governor Bryan and his wife belong to the Presbyterian Church and take an active part in church affairs. They have a daughter, and a son who was a captain in the United States Army.

LITTLE STORY FOR TODAY.

"I want to be excused," said the worried looking juryman, addressing the judge. "I owe a man $25 that I borrowed, and as he is leaving town today for some years I want to catch him before he gets to the train and pay him the money."

"You are excused," returned his honor, in icy tones. "I don't want anybody on the jury who can lie like that."

HENRY SAM PRIEST

The Candidate Courageous!

In announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Missouri, former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest of St. Louis declared against:

First—The Eighteenth Amendment, because it substitutes force for reason; because it punishes the innocent for the sins of the guilty; because it discriminates between the rich and the poor; because it burdens the people with enormous taxes to no purpose and because it is administered corruptly.

Second—The Ku Klux Klan because it seems to have no political principles, and, if it has, it should find expression for them in the regular way at the polls; because, if it is bottomed on religious and race prejudice, its views cannot be accomplished legally, hence its existence can only end in rioting, and because the Ku Klux Klan cannot either deport the objects of its prejudice or deprive them of citizenship, according to the law of the land.

Third—Centralization of government, because it destroys the orbital harmony between the Federal government and the States; because it establishes a bureau of political control at Washington; because it strikes at the very roots of the Constitution.

Judge Priest is the only candidate, Democrat or Republican, who has had the moral courage to come out in the open and state his views unequivocally on these three great important questions.—PRIEST FOR GOVERNOR CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE.

Held Sane by Day, but Insane at Night.

JAMES E. MACUSKER.

One of the strangest cases on record is that of James E. Macusker, a Philadelpiha publisher, who has been held by the courts there to be sane by day, but insane by night. So in the day time he directs his publications from his office, but is locked up at night in the Friends' Asylum at Frankfort, Pa. Macusker, formerly political leader, asserts he was "framed" by political enemies two years ago. Physicians, however, have declared him an incurable paranoiac, and it is upon this diagnosis that he is held.

KLAN PLANK WAS VOTED DOWN

DEMOCRATS DECLINE TO SINGLE OUT KU KLUX KLAN BY NAME.

PLATFORM WAS ADOPTED

Taking of Vote Surrounded by Scenes of Acrimony Never Witnessed on Convention Floor.

New York, June 30. — Emerging wearily from a titanic struggle over its platform, which was finally adopted as reported, by viva voce vote, the democratic national convention started today to plunge into another over candidates.

Balloting for a nominee for the presidency commenced this morning. A deadlock is in prospect.

The platform was perfected at 2 o'clock Sunday morning, when amid scenes of confusion seldom paralleled in party history, a plank condemning Ku Klux Klan by name was pronounced rejected by the narrow margin of a single vote. Another serious contest had been decided previously by adoption of a plank reaffirming in general terms only the party's faith in a league of nations.

The convention's action on the all-absorbing question of the klan apparently had no effect on the relative standing of the candidates, except as it provides a further argument for use by those who are predicting that neither McAdoo nor Smith can be nominated.

The totals of the vote as actually cast by states and territories, however, and as verified on recapitulation shows that 546 and 15 hundredths votes were cast against singling out the klan by name, and that 541 and 85 hundredths votes were cast in favor of it. This acutally increased the mojority to four and 30 hundredths votes, instead of one single vote as given in the official announcement.

The convention's floor fight over the league issue had been accomplished by an unusual display of passion, but it became colorless and almost uninteresting in contrast to the battle waged over the klan plank through the midnight hours and into the early morning of the Sabbath.

In two hours of intensive debate several of the outstanding figures of the democratic party, past and present played upon the emotions of the vast assemblage until delegates and spectators had reached a pitch of nervous excitement rendering futile all further attempts at orderly procedure. Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under Wilson, challenged his party in a fighting speech to openly condemn the klan, and William Jennings Bryan closed the argument for the opposition with an old time show of dash and fire that was met alternately with jeers and applause from floor and gallery.

Georgia Turns Scale.

Then, for two hours and a half the convention sought in a confusion bordering on hysteria to determine its own mind. Time and again the roll call was interrupted by delegates who sought to challenge the accuracy of the vote of their states as cast by their delegation chairman. Back and forth swung the advantage as the voting approached its conclusion and leaders of the opposing forces tried desperately to win over the handful of votes they knew would determine the verdict. As the roll was ended an angry growl of disputation swept over the convention hall in rising volume, chairs were overturned, two or three state standards were wrecked, and there were several personal encounters on the floor and the speaker's platform.

The balance turned finally, when at the end of the roll call, two delegates from Georgia, the home state of the klan, changed their votes and asked that they be recorded against the plank naming the klan. They were Pleasant A. Stovall, the Savannah publisher, and Miss Marion Colley of Washington, Ga. Rising in her place after other members of the delegation had gathered about her in earnest discussion, Miss Colley tearfully and in a faint and quaking voice announced her final decision, and attempted in vain amid the din of the convention hall, to explain why she could not vote to criticize the klan.

Philippine Vote Challenged.

Earlier in the session the Georgia group had been the target for a long and bitter demonstration against the klan, after one of the dissenters among them, Andrew C. Erwin, of Athens, had taken the speaker's stand and pleaded with the convention to take an open stand against the Invisible Empire. A score of anti-klan delegates assembled their standards in a scornful, taunting ring about the Georgians, and Erwin was lifted to the shoulders of the demonstrators and carried twice around the hall at the head of a howling procession of delegates.

In the final moments before the result was announced, Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to Woodrow Wilson, while the latter was in the White House, led a determined campaign on the convention floor to swing over the few votes that would write the anti-klan plank into the party platform. The effort introduced several new elements of confusion and led to at least one encounter in which the police intervened. Acting with Tumulty, T. T. Ansderry of Washington, D. C., who held credentials as an alternate from the Philippines, and Lawrence F. Quigley, mayor of Chelsea, Mass., twice challenged the accuracy of the Philippine vote, and forced a poll of the delegation. Later Quigley sought to question the vote of Georgia, and then from his place in the Massachusetts delegation demanded a poll of the delegation from New Hampshire.

The drive of the anti-klan cohorts did not end even after the vote had been announced, and the adjournment found Quigley on his feet seeking amid the confusion to challenge the ballot of the entire convention. He was shouted down by those about him, however, and the anti-klan leaders later declared there would be no attempt to set aside the action of the convention as illegal.

Insist No Party Split.

Like those who wanted to name the klan specifically in the platform, the leaders who preferred the general religious liberty plank that was adopted, seemed completely satisfied after a Sunday's reflection. Both sides declared the sore spots left by the fight would soon disappear, and insisted that no party split would result from the public airing that had been given the religious disagreement of the delegates.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Hall and son spent yesterday at the home of Mrs. Halls parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Fannon, near Bedison.

Tribute to Harding to Be on Oregon Trail

Plans For Erection Of Large Vista House Move Forward Rapidly—Meeting August 1.

Walla Walla, Wash., June 30.—Plans for the erection of what will probably prove one of the most imposing memorials to be dedicated to the memory of the late President Warren G. Harding have taken a big stride forward with the announcement that a meeting will be held in Milton, Ore., on or about August 1 to carry the work forward and provide a financing plan.

The plan calls for the erection on the top of the Blue Mountains, near Meachem, Oregon, of a vista house to be surrounded by a park, which will provide a resting place for tourists along the Oregon Trail, as well as a sort of shrine for patriotic Americans. It is proposed that at least a section of land be secured, a portion of which shall be timbered. A golf course is part of the undertaking, with the tourist part of the park fully equipped with every convenience.

The Oregon Trail is one of the trails of the West. Its course through the Blue Mountains is especially attractive, and the erection of such a memorial and the creation of the park would undoubtedly draw many thousands of tourists annually. Such a park could be made headquarters for a stay of a week or more, with side trips to many spots of unusual beauty.

President Harding delivered one of the most inspiring addresses of his ill-fated trip at Meachem. At the time of his visit he was strongly impressed with the beauties of the mountains in that vicinity and expressed a wish that they could be viewed by every lover of nature in America.

The movement for the erection of the memorial is headed by A. F. Alexander, of Walla Walla, a staunch Democrat, of Southern extraction, who is known throughout the Northwest as the Father of the Old Oregon Trail. Among its supporters are men and women of every political faith. It is strictly a non-partisan movement—a desire on the part of patriotic Americans of the Northwest to pay honor to a great American.

Governor Walter M. Pierce, of Oregon, and Governor Louis F. Hart, of Washington, have approved the project, as have Representatives in Congress from the two States who have been approached. The newspapers in Southeastern Washington and Eastern Oregon have endorsed the scheme, and all that defers its consummation is the perfection of a permanent organization and securing of funds to carry it forward.

Jefferson Myers, State Treasurer of Oregon, has offered a financing plan that is meeting general approval. He proposes that Congress be requested to issue gold dollars in sufficient amount that, when sold, will provide the funds for the erection of the memorial and its perpetual maintenance Myers suggests that these gold dollars can be disposed of at a premium sufficiently great to finance the scheme. It is proposed that these gold dollars bear the portrait of President Harding on the obverse side and on the reverse side the official insignia of the Oregon Trail. If necessary, Mr. Myers proposes that a souvenir half-dollar be minted and disposed of in the same manner.

A Man's Collar May Be An Index to His Character

"The kind of a collar a man wears is an index to his character and general habits of cleanliness," said a Columbia merchant. "The young man who is frequently in the company of young women pays more attention to the style and fit of his collar than he does to any other part of his clothing. The collar must be snug fitting—almost too small.

According to another clothing merchant here, the studious young man wears comfortable collars. He believes tight collars hinders good brain work. "As to the old man," he said, "there is no certain type of collar he may wear and call it an 'old man's' collar. He once wore the low collar that is now so popular with young men, but now he wears any type that suits his fancy."

A British writer in discussing collars in an English newspaper, says "The fit of a collar is so important a detail. The fit is usually governed by the slope of the shirt neckband." He also says "Englishmen have a habit of wearing collars that are too large, thus giving them an untidy appearance."

In speaking of colored collars the same writer says, "Bright colors are never successful in stiff collars, and should be reserved for the soft kind, especially in taffetas, silk and linen, silk and crepedechine."

So far the custom of wearing crepedechine collars has not invaded Missouri. Nor has anybody seen a colored collar worn here.

It has been about seven years since the detached colored soft collar was worn, and have not been popular locally since, a local haberdasher said yesterday afternoon. The only colored collars we have had on the market this year are those that come in blue and lavender and go to match the shirts of the same shade.

In speaking of collars the dealer went to talking about shirts and said the most popular shirt within the last two or three years is the shirt with the collar attached. And he believed that it would continue to be popular. He said, however, that a number of white stiff collars are worn, but mostly by business men above the age of thirty years. And in regard to the selecting of these collars most men are finiky. Some even ask to take the neckwear to their homes to try on before the final selection.

NARCOTIC EVIL ON DECLINE IN PRISON

ONLY SIX NARCOTIC USERS AT PEN NOW.

TOKEN MONEY IS USED

Warden Crawford Declares He Welcomes Any Non-Political Investigation—Need Larger T.B. Hospt.

Jefferson City.—Through the efforts of Warden J. S. Crawford, much has been done to better conditions at the State Penitentiary, since he took charge fifteen months ago.

Rapid strides have been made in eradicating the dope menace at the institution. There were seventy-six narcotic users there a year ago, and now there are but six. The warden told of a narcotic prisoner who came to the penitentiary, who had been a user of dope for twenty years. He was cured after a ten-day confinement in the hospital where the drug was completely taken away from him. After a few days of the customary craving for his dream-producer, he was able to leave the hospital a well man.

"Money in the hands of prisoners is conducive to dope peddling," said Mr. Crawford. "Consequently, last October, we took all legal money away from the prisoners and issued brass and aluminum tokens, none larger than fifty cents in value. This money is good for any merchandise within the confines of the penitentiary but is worthless elsewhere. This discourages the dope peddler who wants nothing but legal United States money in return for his wares. Even under this rigid system, the dope addicts are sometimes able to get real money and buy dope with it. If I am able to detect any such practices," he continued, "I am in favor of taking even the tokens away from them. This would be a complete and absolute solution of the problem.

"To substantiate my statements regarding our progress in fighting the narcotic evil, I am more than willing that an honest, unbiased investigator with no political ends to serve, shall come and make a report on the conditions he finds at the State Penitentiary. He will find no prisoners falling to the sidewalks, drunk from the effects of narcotics. He will find many cured, and will find no scars on those who used it even up to a year ago."

There is one condition at the State Penitentiary that is not so encouraging, and that is the lack of adequate facilities to properly take care of tubercular cases. We need a new and larger Tuberculosis hospital," urges Mr. Crawford. "The present one is a frame building, and has a capacity of but forty cases, entirely too small for an institution that now has more than twenty-four hundred inmates. The hospital is now filled to the limit. At present, only those patients carrying temperature can be taken care of and even these can not be segregated. Convict assistants aid the one physician who is in charge. He is appointed by the Governor.

"Another thing we need here is compulsory education for all prisoners," the warden said. "I have noticed that no man has ever been sent here because he had too much education, the guards are the teachers, and the classes are taught up to the fourth and fifth grades. "There is a lack of competent teachers and good text books. I hope the next legislature will remedy these conditions."

Newton D. Baker Stirs Delegates

He Got Such an Uproarious and Spontaneous Tribute from Convention.

Madison Square Garden, New York, June 30—The Democratic platform will contain a plank providing that if the party is returned to power this fall, a referendum of all voters shall be taken on the question of joining the League of Nations, with such reservations as the President and Senate may agree on.

This was decided Saturday when the national convention in Madison Square Garden adopted the report of the majority of the Resolutions Committee to that effect by 742½ votes, as against 353½ cast for a minority report calling for immediate entry into the league, with such reservations as might seem desirable.

The convention having disposed of the league issue in the platform, began at a quarter before nine the debate on the two proposed klan planks.

The minority report, calling for immediate entry into the league in the event of Democratic victory, was presented by Newton D. Baker of Cleveland, who was Secretary of War in President Wilson's Cabinet, and was defended by him in an hour-long speech of passionate intensity. Baker brought the question to a straight-out choice between principle and expediency, and Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, who followed him, played up the expediency side of the case with such earnestness that a convention which had been warmed up by Baker's oratory hissed and booed and almost drove the Senator into silence.

Baker Stirs Delegates

It was a direct appeal to the old Wilsonian idealism that Baker presented to his audience, and it brought an amazing response. His speech Friday nominating James M. Cox had given twenty-five minutes to the principles of Wilson and only five minutes to the record of Cox, and his speech Saturday was divided between an appeal to the surviving Wilson sentiment and an attack on the majority report proposal for a referendum as unconstitutional. And when Baker was through speaking he got such an uproarious and spontaneous tribute from the convention, from the delegates on the floor, not from the spectators in the galleries, as has come to no other speaker during the entire week.

Selection of the Lincoln Highway as the official route of travel for Ford Car No. 10,000,000 on its trip from New York to San Francisco brings the world's most popular road and the world's most popular car into a new and more intimate association.

Of course, Ford cars have sped along over this great ribbon of gray stretching from coast to coast ever since it was first laid out and it would be interesting to count the Fords that will meet the ten millionth car on its journey.

But suppose the other 9,999,999 Fords were suddenly to appear and endeavor to get on the highway with Car No. 10,000,000.

Well, there'd be a hurry call for all the traffic cops in the country and just how long it would take them to bring about any semblance of order, no one could even guess.

Anyway, let's give them the credit of doing a good job and finally lining up all the 10,000,000 cars, six abreast, which would make a line 33 feet 9 inches across.

Then even with the cars standing end to end they would cover the entire 3,305 miles of the famous highway and there would be 1,151,920 cars entirely out of the picture, unless the cops were not too tired to park them on either side of the road so they could see the rest of the family on parade.

ANTI-TRUST SUIT BRINGS DISMAY

HITS FIRM OF WHICH DAWES' BROTHER IS HEAD.

WHERE THE RUB COMES

"Prize Bonehead of Campaign" Is Feeling—Dawes Interest Is not of Record.

New York, June 30.—Republican leaders, from strategists on the general staff at Washington on down through division commanders in the various state, are disturbed, if not actually alarmed, by the bringing of Attorney General Stone's suit against the "gasoline monopoly" on the very eve of the campaign.

The reason for the disquiet is the fact that among the "secondary" defendants in the litigation is the Pure Oil company, in which Charles G. Dawes, republican nominee for vice-president, is commonly believed to be stockholder, and of which his brother, Beman G. Dawes, is president.

Attorney General Stone instituted the suit under the Sherman Law, in United States district court in Chicago last Wednesday. The primary defendants named are the Standard Oil companies of Indiana and New Jersey the Gasoline Products company owned by Standard Oil of Indiana, the Standard Development company and the Texas company.

The secondary defendants included forty-four corporations in addition to the Pure Oil company.

Where the Rub Comes.

Republicans agree that an anti-trust suit, especially one involving so widely used commodity as gasoline, might be good campaign tactics under ordinary conditions. But to have included among the defendants a company so intimately associated with the name of one of the national candidates as is the Pure Oil company, with Dawes family has shocked them.

It may be said on excellent authority that one of the highest, if not the highest, officers in the republican organization has characterized the bringing of the suit as "a prize bone."

The Pure Oil Co. was incorporated in Ohio in 1914 as the Columbus Production Co., which was almost immediately renamed the Ohio Cities Gas Co. In 1917 Ohio Cities bought out the Pure Oil Co., and in 1920 the latter name was taken over.

Has Vast Capitalization.

Capitalized or 1 hundred million dollars common and 90 million dollars preferred stock, Pure Oil has a little more than 87 million dollars of stock outstanding. Its last consolidated balance sheet showed 152 million dollars assets, of which 126 million dollars was in property, plant and equipment. It then had a surplus of 44 million 6 hundred thousand dollars.

Nearly 1 million acres of leaseholds and fee lands belong to Pure Oil Co., in West Virginia, Kentucky, Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico, on which at the last report were 3,279 producing wells. It also owns ten casing-head gasoline plants in Ohio, West Virginia and Oklahoma; seven refineries in Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Oklahoma and Minnesota, and eighty-five distributing stations, with 250 drive-in stations for gasoline, in Vermont, New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Washington and Canada. It has marketing branches in Belgium, Holland, Germany and Spain.

Interest Not of Record.

Charles G. Dawes' interest in the company is not of public record. Just a year ago, however, when Pure Oil put out 12 million dollars of 6½ per cent sinking fund notes—its only funded debt except 4 million dollars of notes in the names of two subsidiaries—the underwriting was done by Halsey, Stuart & Co., and the Central Trust Co., of Chicago, of which C. G. Dawes is president.

Throughout the Wheeler inquiry in Washington, Pure Oil figured extensively in the testimony and even more extensively in the gossip which attended the hearings. It was said "a good thing" in Pure Oil had been commended to friends of the administration, and that this had turned out to be a very bad thing, indeed.

Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jesse L. Smith, testified one of her "fliers" was in Pure Oil.

How Missouri Lined Up on Klan Issue

Madison Square Garden, New York June 30.—The Missouri delegation divided by a vote of 25½ to 10½ against the proposed Ku Klux Klan plank mentioning the klan by name. The majority vote favored the committee plank, which did not mention the name of the Klan.

Those voting for naming the klan were Joseph B. Shannon and T. J. Pendergast of Kansas City, L. J. Gauldoni, Michael Whalen, David Israel, Edward Rice, John Keegan, Charles A. Lemp, St. Louis; Charles H. Mayer, St. Joseph; Perry Allen, Springfield, and William Scanlon, Brookfield.

Those voting against naming the klan and in favor of the committee's plank were Frederick D. Gardner, Charles M. Hay, St. Louis; Frank H. Farris, Rolla; Mrs. W. E. Ewing, Odessa; Mrs. Ella Jean Flanders, Excelsior Springs; Mrs. Jennie Kochtitzky, Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Anna Nolen Christian, Monroe City; Ben E. Hulse, Hannibal; Mrs. N. A. Some of the delegates had only one-half vote each.

Seeks Birthplace of Mongolian Desert Man

Andrews Again Heads Party Hoping To Find Traces of Man Million And Half Years Old.

Having established to their own satisfaction the fact that man existed 600,000 years ago, scientists will now attempt to trace his origin back another million years.

Led by Roy Chapman Andrews, who returned from Asia a year ago with a nest of 26 dinosaur eggs ten million years old, another expedition sailed from the United States May 25th for China. Thence the party will proceed into the heart of the Gobi desert, in Mongolia, where it is hoped a five-year search will reveal further amazing secrets concerning the early life of man, beast and reptile.

As in the previous expedition, the scientists will rely on American-built motor cars and trucks for transportation, although roads are unknown in most of the vast territory to be explored. Mr. Andrews recently visited Dodge Brothers factory in Detroit, where five cars were being equipped for the expedition. Mr. Andrews expressed great satisfaction with the new equipment and repeated that he attributed a great share of the success of his last memorable expedition to the remarkable endurance of Dodge Brothers cars. These made it possible to accomplish a 30-year task in three years. In view of this experience it was only natural that he should again insist upon Dodge Brothers cars for his next expedition.

Fifteen scientists representing twelve branches of learning, chosen from 4,000 applicants constitute the party.

All of us could be

LONG SUFFERING ENDED MAN THANKS KARNAK

With his chronic suffering from stomach and kidney disorders gone, I. Eggleston, 304 Alabama St. St. Joseph, Mo., is now an enthusiastic booster of Karnak.

"For the past three or four years it seemed like everything was wrong with me," says Mr. Eggleston. "Food would lie like lead in my stomach. I would bloat as tight as a drum with gas, and have such awful cramps and pains I could hardly stand them. Dizzy spells and headaches and terrible pains through the small of my back and kidneys just took the life out of me, and my nerves were so frayed I could not get any restful sleep.

"A friend told me I should try Karnak and three bottles have made me feel like a brand new man. I eat like I want to now, sleep fine at night, and my kidneys and stomach give me no more trouble, Karnak is in a class by itself, and I am glad to tell everybody about it."

Karnak is sold in Maryville exclusively by Maryville Drug Co.—Adv.

Catch 104 Black Bass on Their Fishing Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Romasser Return From Mantrap Camp, Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Romasser returned Saturday evening by motor from Mantrap Camp, near Dorset, Minn., which is about 650 miles from Maryville as the crow flies as Mr. Romasser expressed it. While in Minnesota the Romassers traveled around considerably and went up in the Iron Range.

"It was just a motor trip," Mr. Romasser said, "and we did a little fishing on the side line," but this is just a mild way of saying that fishing was excellent.

"We caught 104 black bass, both large and small," Gus said and then happened to look around and see Mrs. Romasser standing at his side, who just came in the office, and added, "Mrs. Romasser caught seventy-five out of the total number."

Mr. Romasser said that he was the first one at the camp to catch a muskelunge, a 30-inch fish. The manner in which the Romassers counted the black bass was to count the fish as they tossed them in the boat. The limit is ten black bass a day and Mr. Romasser said that on the fifteenth, the opening day of the month several of the fishermen went out and brought back the limit.

On clear days when the wind was not blowing we could see bass by the thousands, but they would not strike, was one of the stories Mr. Romasser told. The best story he brought home with him is about the first bass caught on the trip.

"We had been getting several strikes but were unable to land one. At last we played a bass for a long time and brought him up to the side of the boat and just as we were about to lift him in he fell off into the water. We could not call that a catch. But the bass was so played out that he just floated on the water and I reached out and grabbed him by the mouth and tossed him in the boat."

The pike were leary of the fishermen this year, Mr. Romasser told several of his friends this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Romasser take a trip every year to the lakes of Minnesota. This summer they were gone about four weeks.

Mr. Romasser said they saw M. M. Curnutt and Walter S. Todd a day or so before they left Mantrap.

Battery C Men Show Up Well at Shoot

Mayes and Sharp Qualify As Sharpshooters on the Pistol and Rifle Range At State Meet.

Lieut. Roy Mayes and Corp. Chas. Sharp of Battery C qualified as sharpshooters on the pistol and rifle range at Nevada last week in the state pistol and rifle shoot. Lieut. Mayes, Corp. Sharp and Pvt. Carl Garrett and Pvt. Cain, who competed in the meet and Pvts. Eldon Dow, Earl Dorman, James Caudell, James C. Partridge and Forrest Rinehart who acted as details at the meet returned from Nevada last evening.

On the pistol range Lieut. Mayes and Corp. Sharp made an average of 76.5 per cent and 74.9 per cent respectively. On the rifle range Mayes made a 72.8 per cent average and Sharp a 72.4 per cent average out of a possible 100 per cent.

Garrett, Cain, Mayes and Sharp all qualified for marksmen on the rifle range in the qualification shoot.

On practice range Mayes was second high man on 1000 yard range with the rifle, shooting 35 out of a possible 50. Mayes first two shots were bullseyes.

Twenty-three qualified as experts the first day on the pistol range, with the four Battery C men among those who qualified but on the record fire a changing wind blew and only three men qualified as experts.

The Battery C men of the 128th Field Artillery showed up exceptionally well among the 400 or more men representing all branches of the service at the pistol and rifle meet.

As the Field Artillery men are not allowed to qualify for the National Rifle Shoot at Camp Perry, Ohio, and there is no National Pistol Shoot none of the Maryville boys will compete in any national meet.

The fishing that Mr. Eek did was rather limited, he said, only getting out on the lake once at his mother's home. He said however, that Mrs. Eek was able to see a number of her friends in Missouri and that he visited with a number of his Northwestern University friends while in Chicago and in Michigan.
